

6 Things You Gotta See at the New York Auto Show

2.0k

SHARES

Share on Facebook

Share on Twitter

WHAT'S THIS?

IMAGE: MASHABLE, CHRISTINA ASCANI

BY ADARIO
STRANGE

APR 18, 2014

The New York International Auto Show will open to the public on Friday, giving car fans direct access to the best of the current crop of automobiles — as well as a look into their future.

But there are so many brands and technologies on display in the massive Jacob Javits Center in Manhattan, it's easy to miss some of the best products and experiences on offer. So to help you cut through the clutter, we've rounded up some of the must-see cars and experiences in one place.

Electric Carriage

New York City residents have been watching the recent debate surrounding the continued use of horses to give people rides around Central Park, an old tradition considered a romantic piece of history by some and an inhumane practice by others.

One possible remedy that could assuage both parties is a new prototype electric carriage on display at the auto show this week. Designed by Jason Wenig, the "E-Carriage," which has a distinctly old timey look, could be just the thing to preserve the romance of old Central Park while meeting approval from animal rights advocates.

IMAGE: SETH WENIG/ASSOCIATED PRESS